FACT SHEET 1:

WHAT IS HUMAN TRAFFICKING/TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS

“Trafficking or traffic in persons” means the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring or receipt of persons by means of threat or use of force or other forms of coercion, abduction, fraud, deception, the abuse of power of a position of vulnerability or the giving or receiving of payments or benefits to achieve the consent of a person having control over another person or debt bondage for the purpose of placing or holding the person whether for or not in involuntary servitude (domestic, sexual or reproductive) in forced or bonded labour, or in slavery-like conditions, the removal of organs or generally for exploitative purposes – Section 82 of Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act, 2015

This definition is in line with that provided by Article 3 of the Protocol to prevent, suppress and punish trafficking in persons, especially women and children, supplementing the United Nations Transnational Organized Crime Convention (UNTOC). 2000

Human Trafficking consists of three elements:

Acts of human trafficking which include recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring, receipt of persons;
Means of human trafficking which include threat or use of force, coercion, abduction, fraud, deception, abuse of power or vulnerability, giving payments or benefits and;

Purpose of human trafficking is Exploitation. Exploitation includes prostitution of others, sexual exploitation, forced labour, slavery, removal of organs, labour exploitation/child abuse and other types of exploitation.

CAUSES OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING

Human trafficking is caused by Push and Pull factors. The Push factors are those factors that propel the victims of human trafficking to leave their homes and countries for the supposed better life in developed cities and countries. Pull factors on the other hand are those factors in the destination country or city that attract the individual or group to leave their home. The root causes of human trafficking are mainly economic but could also be social, political or environmental. They include:

- Economic hardship and Poverty linked with lack of opportunities
- Ignorance of conditions in destination countries or places
- Natural and human-created disaster;
- Traditional community attitudes and practices which tolerate violence against women.
- Social marginalization
- Climate change
- Perception of availability of employment opportunities
- The increasing demand for foreign workers for domestic and care-giving roles
- Growth of the billion-dollar sex and entertainment industry
THE PURPOSE OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING

Human beings are trafficked for exploitation. Exploitation is usually, but not limited to the following;

Commercial sex
Forced marriage
Begging
Forced labour
Ritual practices
Organ harvesting, etc.

The recruitment process is very deceitful as the traffickers do not show the victims the reality of trafficking. Most of them are lured by false promises; some are escorted by relatives while some are trapped out of sheer greed knowing full well the implications of their actions.

THE EFFECTS OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING

Human trafficking has effects or consequences both on the victims of the crime and on the society in general

TRENDS IN HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN NIGERIA

Nigeria is a source, transit and destination country for trafficking and she also experiences internal and external trafficking of women and children. Internally, trafficking takes the form of recruitment and transportation of children from rural to urban centres and other forms of exploitative conditions, while external trafficking takes place across borders. Both are exploitative and happen under slave-like conditions.

(i) INTERNAL TRAFFICKING

From rural to urban Urban to urban

(ii) EXTERNAL TRAFFICKING

From Nigeria to Europe (Italy, Spain, The Netherlands, Belgium) Asia, (Dubai, Kuwait Saudi Arabia), other African countries (Ghana, Libya, Mali, Burkina Faso, Cote D’Ivoire etc.) and The USA.

This is done by road, air and sea routes as seen below:

Nigeria- Cotonou -Togo-Morocco by road;
Europe (by air)

PROTECTION INSTRUMENTS

To implement its mandate to protect victims of human trafficking, the Agency has articulated frameworks and instruments to support this mandate. The main instrument is the National Policy on Protection and Assistance to Trafficked Persons in Nigeria. November, 2008 (supported by Canadian International Development Agency CIDA)

The Policy adopts a holistic approach in the protection and assistance to trafficked persons through rehabilitation programmes that provide appropriate integration into their various communities.

The scope/method includes reception, identification, sheltering, counselling, family tracing, return/repatriation, integration, empowerment, follow-up/after-care and disengagement.

Further, the following documents were made to support the implementation of the policy;

i) The strategic implementation framework of April 2011 for the UNFPA & protection policy (supported by UNFPA & Norwegian embassy)

ii) The Operational Guide for Monitoring and Evaluating Protection and Assistance Services for Trafficked Persons in Nigeria, a companion for the strategic implementation framework
iii) Guidelines on National Referral Mechanism for Protection and Assistance to Trafficked Persons in Nigeria, 2013 (supported by UNODC, The European Union & IOM)

iv) Guidelines for the protection of children in formal care, 2009. The guidelines contain checklists and Codes of Conduct for care-givers and others who come in contact with children in informal care, including the mass media. (supported by UNICEF and Terre des homes)

INDICATORS OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING

Human trafficking has indicators that help first responders and practitioners to identify trafficked victims or potential victims. Here are some of the key indicators:

i. Young persons travelling in a group, usually led by someone older who might have some role in the trafficking chain;

ii. Inconsistent story as to the reason why each individual (in an intercepted group) is travelling;

iii. Very similar stories given by different persons travelling in a group;

iv. Shabby dressing;

v. A bag packed with foodstuff and emergency water storage;

vi. Nervousness on the part of intercepted persons;

vii. An unsure story of who to meet at destination; and viii. Possession of false travel papers.

Note that in many situations, there may be a direct report at a Police station or other law enforcement organisation. It may also be a referral from another organisation.
Further Indicators

According to UNODC and UN.GIFT (Human Trafficking Indicators) People who have been trafficked may:

I. Believe that they must work against their will;
II. Be unable to leave their work environment;
III. Show signs that their movements are being controlled;
IV. Be subjected to violence or threats of violence against themselves or against their family members and loved ones;
V. Suffer injuries that appear to be the result of an assault;
VI. Be distrustful of the authorities;
VII. Be threatened with being handed over to the authorities;
VIII. Not being in possession of any identity document, passports or other travel documents as these are being held by someone else;
IX. Have false identity or travel documents;
X. Be unfamiliar with the local people/language;
XI. Not know their work or home address;
XII. Allow others to speak for them when addressed directly;
XIII. Act as if they were instructed by someone else;
XIV. Receive little or no payment for work done; or
XV. Have no access to their earnings
FACT SHEET 8:

CONTROL METHODS

Traffickers use a range of control measures in order to exploit victims continually, without much resistance. Some of the control measures include;

Violence and Threats of Violence. Violence or the threat of violence can be used at any stage of the trafficking process to control a victim. Victims, or their friends and/or relatives, may be the subject and targets of the threats and violence.

Deception. Many TIP cases start with the victims being deceived as to the true intent of what they may be doing at destination. Example, the promise of a job or school admission.

Imprisonment. Traffickers may use direct imprisonment or something very similar to imprisonment, as a method of control.

Collusion. Victims are likely to be easier to control if the traffickers force them to participate in acts that may be criminal or improper and may give the victims a little portion of the proceeds of such acts.

Debt Bondage. This involves charging unnecessarily high fees to victims for transport, accommodation, food and a range of other “expenses” that have allegedly been incurred by the traffickers. These expenses are often completely fictitious or greatly exaggerated.

Relationship control. Victims may become sympathetic to the cause of their captors or develop strong emotional ties with one or more of their traffickers.
This is sometimes known as Stockholm Syndrome where victims may not even acknowledge or realize that they are victims of a crime due to dependency or “trauma bonding.”

Isolation. Victims of trafficking are likely to be isolated by the nature of their circumstances, away from their homes and family, often not speaking the local language, without the right travel documents, lacking money and with restrictions on their movement.

Religion, Culture and Belief. Victims may be prevented from taking part in religious services, being part of their culture or taking part in what they believe in during their period of victimization.

Fetish Oaths. Young females recruited for sexual exploitation in Europe and other parts of the world are taken to fetish shrines where they are forced to take an oath before departure. This oath is an effective control mechanism as it is used to psychologically control the victims throughout the exploitation process. The oath may be for loyalty to the trafficker or act as a lucky charm.
