What is child exploitation?

Child exploitation is a global problem.

There are many forms of child exploitation. Child exploitation includes child domestic work, child soldiers, the recruitment and involvement of children in armed conflict, sexual exploitation and pornography, the use of children for criminal activities including the sale and distribution of narcotics and the involvement of children in harmful or hazardous work.

Children are considered to be exploited whenever a profit is made from their vulnerability and lack of power, whenever children are abused to somebody else's benefit and whenever they start working despite being too young or for long hours. Exploitation also occurs when children work in dangerous or unhealthy conditions, when they are underpaid or when they are coerced into forced labour, debt bondage or slavery.

Child work vs. Child exploitation

In its fight against child exploitation, Terre des Hommes makes a distinction between child work and child labour, and gives top priority to eradicating the latter. Child work refers to the participation of children in an economic activity which is not detrimental to their health and mental and physical development. It is light work for a limited amount of hours, according to their age and abilities, that doesn't interfere with a child's education or leisure activities. This work, when it teaches

Child domestic work

Thousands of child domestic workers are hidden within households, working hard and long hours (often over 16 hours a day), for little or no pay, living in abusive situations, without regular contact with their family. They no longer attend school, missing the opportunity to improve their future prospects through education. Terre des Hommes strives for the liberation of children from this form of slavery, provides victims with shelter, and urges governments to introduce laws against this type of abuse.
