Global Diplomacy: the United Nations in the World

Université de Londres, SOAS University of London

À propos de ce cours : The course offers a well-researched and broad-ranging primer to the United Nations system. Consisting of an introduction to the complex UN family and its history, and a series of 'snapshots' of key UN functions, which are used to explore important UN themes and help learners develop important analysis, communication, and policy-based skills.

The course is aimed broadly at people interested in learning more about the United Nations system, assuming a level of interest but no necessary previous knowledge, whilst also offering offering sufficient up to date research and new critical perspectives that it will also be of interest to people with more expertise or academic familiarity with the topic as well.

Créé par : Université de Londres, SOAS University of London in a self-contained, but in-depth form, alongside the important practical skills necessary to understand and discuss UN affairs, and potentially lay the groundwork for greater engagement in future – either in civil society or in further study.

Enseigné par : Dr Dan Plesch, SOAS University of London, Dr Centre for International Studies and Diplomacy (CISD), SOAS

WEEK 7

Very interesting materials and perspectives to analyze history, present and future being of the UN. I would have let more time for subject matter experts to expose their views on each topic, but overall, good and interesting content.

★★★★☆

Where next for the UN? [OPTIONAL]

The teacher doesn't exactly... teach per say. But the materials and sources provided through the week, students will have a chance to review and draw together what they have learned over the previous weeks, and develop analysis skills when assessing how different priorities. This exercise will also introduce the issue of practicality and organisational politics to it, giving students an opportunity to consider how the issues they have examined might be affected by the process of implementation.
