International Day for the Abolition of Slavery – 2 December 2009

On the occasion of 2 December – International Day for the Abolition of Slavery, ASTRA organized art competition for young people titled “Women are not meat. Children are not slaves. People are not for sale”. Since winter holidays had begun earlier because of the swine flu epidemic, it was decided to postpone the announcement of the results for the second semester. Hence, prizes were awarded to the most successful contestants at the event in Media Center in Belgrade on 5 February 2010.

We received a great number of works from young people all across Serbia and the jury had a difficult task to chose the best ones. Besides one multimedia work, all the others were either literary or visual arts. That is why we decided to award two groups of prizes according to the type of art and to have two types of jury (literary and visual) composed of ASTRA members and associates specialized for particular area.

The story by Milica Stanković, pupil of the Seventh Belgrade High School, was awarded as the best literary work, the second prize went to Milica Resimić from the Ivanjica High School and the third prize was shared by Isidora Alimpić the Seventh Belgrade High School and Aleksandra Mandić from Vocational Secondary School of Economics from Šabac.

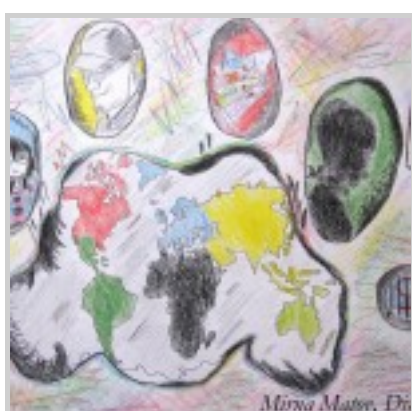

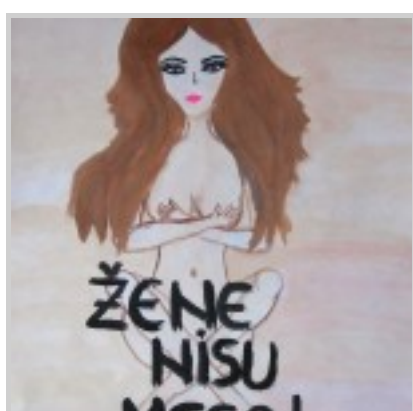

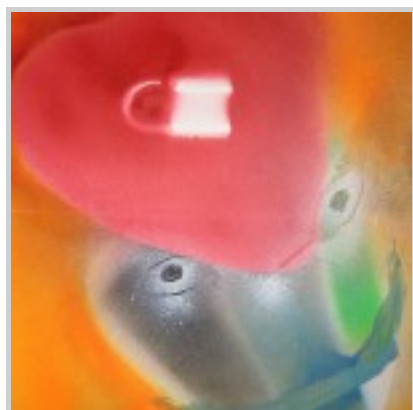

As far as visual arts are concerned, Ana Vasov from the Sveti Kirilo i Metodije High School from Dimitrovgrad won the first prize, the second prize went to Filip Roksanđić from the Vocational Secondary School of Medicine Zvezdara, Belgrade and the third prize went to Tamara Petrović from the Sveti Kirilo i Metodije High School from Dimitrovgrad.

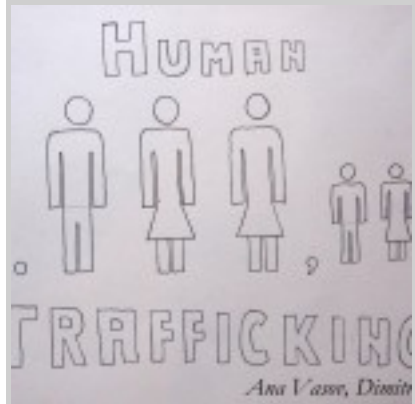

Moreover, the juries decided to give two special awards – to Dejan Marković from the Ivanjica High School and Tafilj Dubova from the Vocational Secondary School for Crafts, Belgrade.

ASTRA is using this opportunity to once again thank all the contestants who thus contributed to the awareness raising of the problem of human trafficking in Serbia.
